DEPUTY COMMISSIONER

F.DO/2015-KVS(BPL)

Dated: 22/08/2015

Dear Principals,

Successful people believe in themselves. They have one idea coursing silently through their veins and brains all the day. It is a mantram that goes like this: 'I am confident that I'll succeed. I am confident that I'll succeed.' It is the way of telling themselves that they have confidence to win and keep winning. If or not they actually voice it inside their heads, this is what successful people are telling themselves.

You may not believe it applies to you. You may think this is ego run amok. But look at yourself. How do you have the confidence to wake up in the early morning and charge into work, filled with optimism & desire, and the eagerness to compete? It is not because you are reminding yourself of all the screw-ups you created and failures you have endured in the past. On the contrary, it is because you edit out the failures and choose instead to run the highlight reel of your success. If you are like most people I know, you are constantly focusing on the success, calling up images of performances where you were the star, where you dazzled everyone and came out on top. It must be this year when you have floor to make it happen (who wouldn't run that highlight in their head?) It might be skillfully crafted DO that your DC praised and routed to everyone in the KVs. (who would not want to reread that DO in a spare moment?) Whatever the evidence, if it has a happy ending that makes us good look, we'll replay it for ourselves and retell it to anyone who shall listen.

You will see this confident mindset in your successful friends, simply by the stories you hear them repeat. Are they recounting of their failures? Or are they tales of success? If they are successful friends, it's the later.

When it's come to the thoughts we hold inside our heads, we are not self-deprecating. We are self-aggrandizing. And that is a good thing. Without it, we might not get up in the early morning.

2. This is another way of saying, 'I am confident that I'll succeed'. Successful people believe that they have the capability within themselves to make success happen. It is not like a carnival magic act where the mentalist moves objects or a table with his mind or bends steel. But it's close. Successful people like you literally believe that through sheer force of self confidence, they can steer a situation in their direction.

It is the reason why some principals raise their head and say, 'Put us in, Coach' when their DC asks for volunteers to have success happened- and others cower in the corner, praying they are not noticed.

This is the classic definition of self efficacy & success and it must be your most central belief driving you to a big success in the current year.

3. You have already proved your confidence this week when successfully conducted Regional Sports Meet 2015 at short notice, and also reserved confirmed trained tickets to and fro for KVS National Sports Venues. Your belief into your confidence made you succeed see opportunities in this limited time received; others could have seen the situation as threat. Congratulations for this duel accomplishment! This event has not only proved your worth but also has given me lots of learning, while worked with you round the clock, with the charge taken over at RO.

I request to share the DO with your teachers (one copy to each)

I request you to acknowledge immediately.

With regards.

Yours sincerely,

(Isampal)
